

About NSITSP

WE are a professional association representing SMB – small and medium business – IT consultants. We focus on education, professionalism, and promoting the interests of IT professionals everywhere.

WE provide pathways to establish high standards and ethics, and to improve the perception and credibility of the IT profession through actions driven by member engagement.

Join Us!

National Society of
IT Service Providers
5716 Folsom Blvd, #145
Sacramento, CA 95819

www.nsitsp.org

Define Your Future

Legislative Resource Guide

Help yourself and your state
define the future of IT Service
Provider regulatory framework

THE purpose of this Resource Guide brochure is to provide you with all the information you need to engage your state representatives.

WE encourage NSITSP members to take an active role in order to affect change in the coming inevitable regulatory environment.

We all must be a voice in order to have a say in the changes that lie ahead.

Join us!

Visit www.nsitsp.org.

Resources

Below you will find a number of resources to help you get started with engaging you state representatives. The basic concept is to become a technology service industry voice and resource to your state representatives. Getting you and the NSITSP on their radar as a helpful point of contact will pay dividends going forward.

Taking action to be a voice is easy. It just simply takes a little effort and persistent follow-up to make a difference.

Whether you call yourself a computer consultant, MSP, VAR, a systems integrator, a solutions provider, a reseller, or something else, we are here to help you to be as successful as possible.

We are committed to helping you achieve success by adopting an effective business model, running your business well, and representing your interested to the business community generally.

We provide pathways to establish high standards and ethics, and to improve the perception and credibility of the IT profession through actions driven by member engagements.

Our values articulate how we work together as a team and with our members and partners. As our environment changes, our strategy may change, but our values stay consistent to help us meet any challenges we may face as an organization.

Who Are Your State Representatives?

As a first step, knowing who your representatives are is key. We have found that www.openstates.org is a great please to get started in gathering the essential contact information and learning a bit more about the various details of each of your district representatives.

Know Your Legislator Handbook

Visit the NSITSP web site and review our Know Your Legislator Handbook – You'll find it in the Member Resources area at <https://www.nsitsp.org/member-resources>.

And, in general, keep an eye on the NSITSP site for the latest information via the blog and other areas on the site.

Tips for Contacted Elected Officials

The UC Berkeley Library has a great tips page on contacting you elected officials at: <https://guides.lib.berkeley.edu/ContactingOfficials/Tips>

Join us at www.nsitsp.com

